VOL. LXII.

HICKMAN, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1922.

NO. 50

CHAUTAUQUA HERE JUNE 20 TO 24

Program This Year is One of Best to be Offered Hickman Public.

The comedy drama, "Friendly Enemies"; Solis' Marimba Band of spirited Central American musicians; lectures of timely significance, and top-notch musical companies—these are among the many varied attractions which will appear here at the big 1922 Redpath Chautauqua which open June 20th and continue for five days.

The New England Male Quartet on the first afternoon will be heard in a grand concert. This organization features some of the best songs for male voices interspersed with capital character impersonations and monologues.

Following a prelude by the quartet in the evening, Lewis A. Convis will deliver his remarkably interesting address, "Under the Faws of the Russian Bear." Mr. Convis, who is a traveler, lecturer, and scholar, recently spent two years in Russia and Siberia.

The Alexander Trio, popular entertainment company, presenting novel and artistic instrumental numbers, character sketches, and songs on the second day will give a grand concert in the afternoon and a prelude at night. The Trio features melody and fun in admirable proportion.

Frank Dixon, eminent publicist and lecturer, appearing on the second night, speaks on "The Indispensable Tools of Democracy." Mr. Dixon is an incisive, brilliant, humorous speaker who presents governmental and social problems constructively and illuminatingly.

The Zedeler Symphonic Quintet, appearing on the third day, is an organization of first-rank, artist-musicians. They employ a cello, two violins, a piano, and a reed organ in their delightful interpretations of the music of the masters. Soprano solos supplement the instrumental selections on their exceptional programs. The Zedellers give a grand concert in the afternoon and a prelude at night.

Granville Jones, inspiring orator and thorough student of present-day social phenomena, on the third night will present one of his greatest lectures, "The Creed of America." Mr. Jones leaves a distinct impression on every community.

"Furnishing the Home Beautiful," as discussed by Edwin W. Unangst, authority on interior decoration, will be the unusually interesting program of the fourth afternoon. Mr. Unangst will describe and exhibit on the stage attractive, inexpensive interiors, and will conduct a question-box at the close of his lecture, discussing individual problems of house furnishings.

On the fourth night comes "Friendly Enemies," an uproarious comedy drama whose plot grows out of the conflicting convictions of two life-long friends. Audiences in all parts of the United States have alternately laughed and wept over this well-known comedy success. It will be presented by a cast of exceptionally competent New York actors.

On the last afternoon Pattison Kline will give a constructive address "What Do You Think When You Think?" Mr. Kline is an inspiring speaker of the highest type.

On the last night will be presented the big musical novelty feature of the Chautauqua—a grand concert by Solis' Marimba Band of Central Americans. They will feature both classical and popular music on a huge marimba—an Aztec instrument capable of an almost infinite variety of orchestral effects. The band will also give a short concert preceding Mr. Kline's lecture in the afternoon.

In accordance with the long standing policy of the Redpath Bureau, a special story hour will be conducted each morning or afternoon for the children. A thoroughly trained young woman will have charge of this work. The stories will prove an unfailing delight to the youngsters.

Mrs. Karl Talley delightfully entertained the Bridge Club and a few other friends Wednesday afternoon of last week from 3 to 5:30 in honor of Mrs. Harry Walker of Bon Air, Tenn. Bridge was played during the afternoon and at the close a delicious salad course was enjoyed. Those present were Mesdames W. B. Amberg, Herman Bradley, C. T. Bondurant, E. B. Prather, Jr., C. M. Reynolds, F. M. Maddox, E. B. Prather, Sr., A. S. Birnbaum, Nlm Walker, W. F. Renneberg, Guy Hale, Jessie Dillon, Henry Sanger, W. A. Dodds, C. B. Travis and Misses Mildred Thompson, Jane Binford, Nell Bondurant, Mary Hollan. Out-of-town guests were Miss Bess Ruth Moore, of Jackson, and Mrs. W. C. Reed, of Paducah.

Frank McKelvey, of Milan, and well known here was in town Tuesday. He is a popular salesman for a well known staple clothes line, and his statement is that business throughout his whole territory, covering four southern states, is getting better daily by leaps and bounds. Coming from one in so excellent a position to keep a line on the economic pulse of the country this statement, which is only in corroboration of the statements of practically every other salesman making this city, augurs well for an early resumption of "business as usual" and the relegation of "hard times" to the limbo of innocuous desuetude.

Miss Hazel Tohrner left Friday for her home in Franklin, Tenn., after spending several weeks with her sister, Mrs. E. Dobson, and assisting in putting on the pageant here.

IRON COFFIN FOUND IN EDGE OF RIVER

Said to Contain Body of Child Which Was Buried Before Civil War.

On last Thursday afternoon, while examining the river bank below the Mengel Company, Colonel C. L. Walker and W. C. Vance found a coffin in the edge of the river. The coffin was found to be cast iron and such a curiosity that men were gotten to bring it up on the bank. The coffin was found to be two-thirds full of black water, the accumulation, possibly of half a century, as the casket was air tight and the only seepage being where one of the screws went through in the head plate, and this had rusted over. The coffin was five feet and three inches long, very narrow at the head, and tapered down to ten and one-half inches at the foot, and inside measurement of only seven inches, the type of the Egyptian coffin, the widest part being only 17 inches outside measure and 15 inches inside measurement. The coffin had been cast in two equal parts—the top and bottom—and were bolted together. There were three handles on each side, and the bolts clamping the halves were put through these handles and the coffin sealed. There was a plate at the head, which, when removed, disclosed a heavy glass plate beneath, but the contents were obscured by the black water. The glass plate was removed and the water poured out, showing a skeleton, the bones all apart. Those who first saw the casket said they had never seen one of its style. Later, marks were found on the coffin, showing the figures "48" and the words "Manufactured by Fiske Brothers of New York, N. Y." The coffin was solid cast iron and in its day had, no doubt, been an expensive one. It bore the ravages of time wonderfully. With the river bank caving at that point the coffin was left in the water's edge, uncovered. After a number of inquiries, George Helm stated he knew the identity of the person—a child—who was first cousin of his wife, and buried there before the Civil war. The date of the coffin showed it was manufactured seventy-four years ago. The coffin was buried Friday, after being viewed by hundreds of people.

Farmers throughout this whole section as well as other business men seem to be looking for a return of better things this fall if favorable weather conditions prevail until the crops are harvested. The outlook is bright, and will bring a top price, and the cotton crop around here this year is going to be a "whopper," while corn and wheat and other grain are going to bring a much better price this year than last, according to the knowing ones. Added to this, there are the crops which practically are in their beginning around Hickman this year, such as sweet potatoes, strawberries and other truck, and the great increase in interest in poultry and other minor farm produce. All in all the outlook is a most pleasing one for the farmer and the merchant.

H. C. Barrett, manager of Barrett & Ledford, returned Monday after a few days spent in attending the convention of the Tri-States Undertakers and Embalmers Association which met for the first time in Memphis. He is loud in his praise of the excellent entertainment which was furnished the delegates and visitors by the City of Memphis and the local members of the association. Returning he went by way of Portageville, Mo., where he made a short visit to relatives and friends.

Mrs. Jessie Dillon entertained at four tables of bridge Friday afternoon of last week from 3 to 5:30. At the close delicious cream and cake were enjoyed. Those present were: Mesdames Mack Reid, C. L. Walker, Milton Spradlin, F. M. Maddox, E. B. Prather, Sr., Karl Talley, C. B. Travis, E. B. Prather, Jr., and Henry Cowgill, and Misses Mary Hollan, Bertie May Rice, Mildred Ramage and Carrie Male Reid and Mrs. W. C. Reid, of Paducah.

E. A. Hammond returned Friday night from Memphis, where he attended the first meeting of the Tri-States Undertakers and Embalmers Association in their general convention. He reports a glorious time both from the viewpoint of the programs presented and the entertainment furnished.

Mrs. Wickersham, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. L. Slade, for the past four weeks, left Friday for St. Petersburg, Fla., where they will make their future home. Mrs. Wickersham, accompanied by her husband, came here from near Lincoln, Neb.

An excellent likeness of the Rev. A. S. Pettie appeared in the "Peeps at the World Through the Times Camera" page of the Louisville Times of Monday. Accompanying it was a short legend apropos of his fifty years service as a minister.

Mrs. Arch Eaton and children of Sheffield, Ala., left Wednesday to visit her mother-in-law, Mrs. Eaton, of Memphis, after a visit with her sister, Mrs. Dan Briggs. Mrs. Briggs accompanied them to Memphis for a few days' visit.

Rev. E. A. Tucker returned Friday from Hot Springs, where he has been in attendance of the annual meeting of the General Conference of the M. E. Church South.

Mrs. Annette Johnson, of Dyersburg, spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. S. M. Nalfeh.

FIND BIG STILL NEAR WATER VALLEY

Magistrate Harry George and Officers Hendley and Pentecost early this morning captured a moonshine whisky making outfit in the hills near old Feltiana, near Water Valley. The raid was made about 3 o'clock.

A modern copper still of fifteen gallons capacity was found, along with about a gallon of 'shine and two barrels of mash.

Dave Jones was arrested on a charge of operating the still and gave bond before Magistrate George.—Mayfield Messenger.

"A woman claiming to be a lineal descendant of John the Baptist is spreading the gospel in the streets of Cairo, Ill.

"The workmen have commenced on Powell & Bros' new business house."

"Hickman city bonds command 90 cents on the market."

"The West Hickman levee is to be built at an average of four feet. The enterprise produces strong opposition."

"The city authorities have ordered all the dogs muzzled or killed."

"In this issue we announce William T. Lineback as a candidate for city marshal."

"Three negro policemen have been appointed by our city government for special duty among our colored population."

"Our popular saloonists, Stegala & Lane, have given their place the name 'Dolly Varden Saloon and Billiard Room.'"

The 8-year-old son of William D. Taylor, fell into the river and was drowned.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

"According to reports spotted fever has again made its appearance, this time in McCracken county."

"Overcoats were in demand the first of the week."

"The candidates are hustling as they never hustled before."

"Farming in the overflowed districts is progressing slowly on account of the ground baking."

"Wheat is heading, and the rattling of the binding machine will be heard in about two weeks."

"Findley Randle, who has been merchandising at Bertig, Ark., has sold out his stock and returned home."

"The great flood of 1897 will soon be only a remembrance."

"Rev. J. H. Brooks informs us that a little stranger, weighing 9½ pounds, made his appearance at his residence Tuesday morning."

"Blackberries—the poor man's crop—promise to be abundant this season."

"Dispatches from Washington confirm the report that James T. Stephens has been appointed postmaster at this place."

"It comes from the White House that the president is in favor of the independence of Cuba, and that before long the Spanish minister will have changed his residence from Washington to Madrid."

IT'S FOOLISH TO SUFFER

When So Many Hickman People Are Pointing the Way Out

You may be brave enough to stand backache or headache or dizziness. But, if, in addition, urination is disordered, look out! If you don't try to fix your sick kidneys, you may fall into the clutches of dangerous disease before you know it. But, if you live more carefully and help your kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills, you can stop the pains you have and avoid future danger as well. Don't experiment—use the remedy Hickman people are publicly endorsing. Read this case:

Mrs. T. E. Mitchum, Hickman, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been a household remedy in our home for years. I have taken them with splendid results when I have felt the need of a kidney remedy. Others in the family have also taken Doan's. I certainly know from experience, they are a very reliable kidney medicine, and I am glad to give them my hearty endorsement."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Mitchum had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

EMERSON'S BIG SHOW

BOAT COMING

The Emerson show boat, "Golden Rod," the largest and best equipped show boat in America, will visit our city for the first time in five years on Friday, May 26, and at that time present for the approval of the amusement loving public the big dramatic play in three acts, "The Little Lost Sister," with four acts of high class vaudeville as an added attraction.

The "Golden Rod" is the largest show boat on the rivers and presents at all times a bigger and better show than the others, and always a clean, moral and refined attraction.

This year's attraction is above the average and is one that will please the whole family, and so if you are looking for an evening of real enjoyment and want to see a show that is "Really Worth While" don't miss the Emerson Golden Rod when it shows here on Friday, May 26, as Mr. Emerson always guarantees his attractions in every way.

No Worms in a Healthy Child
All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a general strength giving tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

It's wasted effort. You can never win an argument with a taxi driver or a telephone operator.—Jackson Citizen.

FACTS ABOUT KENTUCKY

General Simon Kenton explored Northeastern Kentucky, in Boyd and Greenup counties, in 1771 and 1772. In 1773 he made some other surveys.

Bourbon county in 1920 had a population of 18,418, as compared with 17,462 in 1910. The county contained 183,411 acres of land and 54 miles of railroad. Paris, the county seat, has a population of 6,310.

Louisville was the first town laid out in Kentucky. The survey was made by Captain Thomas Bullitt in 1775. Harrodsburg was the second town laid out.

The first stage route was opened between Lexington-Winchester-Mt. Sterling and Olympian Springs in 1803. An automobile bus line now follows much the same route.

The Danville jail was the first built in Kentucky. That city was for many years the seat of a federal court and a state district court, and early prisoners of the commonwealth were housed in this bastille.

The battle of Ivy Mountain, in Pike county, was fought on November 8, 1861. Less than 1,000 Confederates, under Colonel John S. Williams, ambushed three Ohio regiments of Union forces under General Nelson. The Confederates were defeated after an hour and twenty minutes.

Patrick Henry signed the first land patent issued in Kentucky. He was then the first governor of Virginia, having been chosen in 1776. Kentucky was created as a county out of part of Fincastle county, Virginia, in 1772.

Governor Magoffin in 1861 made a desperate effort to keep Kentucky neutral in the Civil war. He issued on May 20, 1861, a proclamation declaring in favor of armed neutrality and "notifying and warning all other states, whether separated or united, and the Confederate states, that I solemnly forbid any movement upon the soil of Kentucky or the occupation of any port, post or place whatever within the lawful boundary and the jurisdiction of this state, by any of the states aforesaid, for any purposes whatsoever—until authorized by invitation or permission of the legislative and executive authorities of the state previously granted."

Then there were—
Nine little flies
Grimly sedate;
Licking their chops—
Swat! Then there were Eight little flies
Rising some more—
Swat, swat! Swat, swat!
Then there were—
Four little flies
Colored green-blue,
Swat, swat! (Ain't it easy?)
Then there were—
Two little flies

Hail Destroys Millions of Dollars of Tobacco

The loss of tobacco by hail in this and other tobacco states within the last five years has run up into millions of dollars with only a small part covered by insurance.

Yet, the amount of insurance received by growers who had the foresight thus to protect themselves against such loss, was enormous and should make every grower not only feel the necessity of insuring his tobacco crop against hail storms loss but to do that very thing and do it at once.

What Dr. Halley Says: Dr. Samuel H. Halley, of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, upon congratulating an insurance company on lowering its rates on tobacco hail insurance, said, "Within the period that I have had hail insurance I have had four severe losses. The money I received exceeded considerably what I paid in, to say nothing of my peace of mind that I was fully protected in case of a storm. I have always advocated carrying hail insurance on tobacco without which every grower takes a chance to lose all. With it he can, in safety, go into the business of producing a crop which requires, as does tobacco, so much labor, time and money."

Now that the Burley Growers have gone into an organization to handle their business in a modern economic business-like way, I see no reason why all growers can not take out insurance on the reduced rates the companies are now quoting. Look up the insurance agent in your section now, and let him protect you against the loss of your tobacco. Policies effective July 10th, noon.

CITIZENS' MILITARY TRAINING CAMP

Major C. T. Smart, infantry officer, was in Hickman Monday in the interest of the summer training camp at Camp Knox for young men between the ages of 17 and 25 years. The camp begins August 1 and continues for thirty days. Applications must be in by the last of this month.

Present plans provide for the training at Camp Knox of 2,250 men in the Red (basic) course. This course is intended for those who have never had military training or who desire to obtain practical field training in addition to training already received in a cadet corps or similar organization. The military training given will be confined to the simple fundamentals, sufficient to qualify a graduate for enlistment in the Organized Reserves, the "Citizen Soldier" branch of the United States Army. Any man between the ages of 17 and 25, of good moral character and possessing average general intelligence, is eligible to attend this course. Application blanks may be secured from, and should be submitted to, the Chief of Staff, 100th Division, U. S. Army and Organized Reserves of West Virginia, 302-303-304 Morrison Building, Charleston, W. Va., who is in direct charge of recruiting for the camp throughout the state.

In addition, about 500 men whose military qualifications are equal to or greater than those of a graduate of the Red Course will be given training in the next higher, the White Course, the purpose of which is to qualify them as non-commissioned officers in the Organized Reserves. Age limits for this course are 18 to 26 years. An additional 150 men especially qualified, and selected principally from noncommissioned officers of the Organized Reserves and National Guard will be given the highest course, the Blue, which is intended to qualify them for commissions in one of the components of the U. S. Army. Age limits for this course are 19 to 27.

Any man with previous military training in the regular army, national guard or Organized Reserves is eligible for any of the three courses, provided he is under 35 years of age.

The government pays all expenses of candidates, including their fare, uniforms, equipment and food. A large portion of the time at the camp is devoted to recreation and athletics. Religious services will be held for men of Protestant and Catholic faith. It is the intention that every young man who attends the camp shall experience a month of pleasant, healthy vacation, in addition to receiving the military training. Those who attended a similar camp held at Camp Knox last summer have been among the first to reapply this year, and are sending in the names of friends to whom they desire application blanks sent.

All applications for attendance must be submitted before May 31. No applications received after that date will be considered. Applications may be secured at the postoffice.

CALOMEL GOOD BUT TREACHEROUS

Next Dose May Salivate, Shock Liver or Attack Your Bones

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out just go to your drugist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you today's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and cannot salivate.

ESTRAY NOTICE

Affiant, Rodney Jones, after having been duly sworn, states that the following described animal, to-wit: one red sow, with black spots on left side, weighs about 140 pounds, was taken up by him as an estray on his premises, in Fulton County, Kentucky, near Brownsville, about 3 miles south of Hickman, and that he values the said animal at $10.00 and George Davis, resident and property owner of Fulton County, Ky., being duly sworn, appraises said animal at $10.00 and I, Chas. D. Nugent, Judge of Fulton County, value same at $10.00; wherefore, it is ordered that this notice be recorded by the County Court Clerk in a book kept for that purpose and said Clerk is directed to furnish an attest copy to The Hickman Courier for publication, and to post one on the Court House door.

Witness my hand this 16th day of May, 1922.

Chas. D. Nugent, Judge of Fulton County, Ky.

Attest copy.

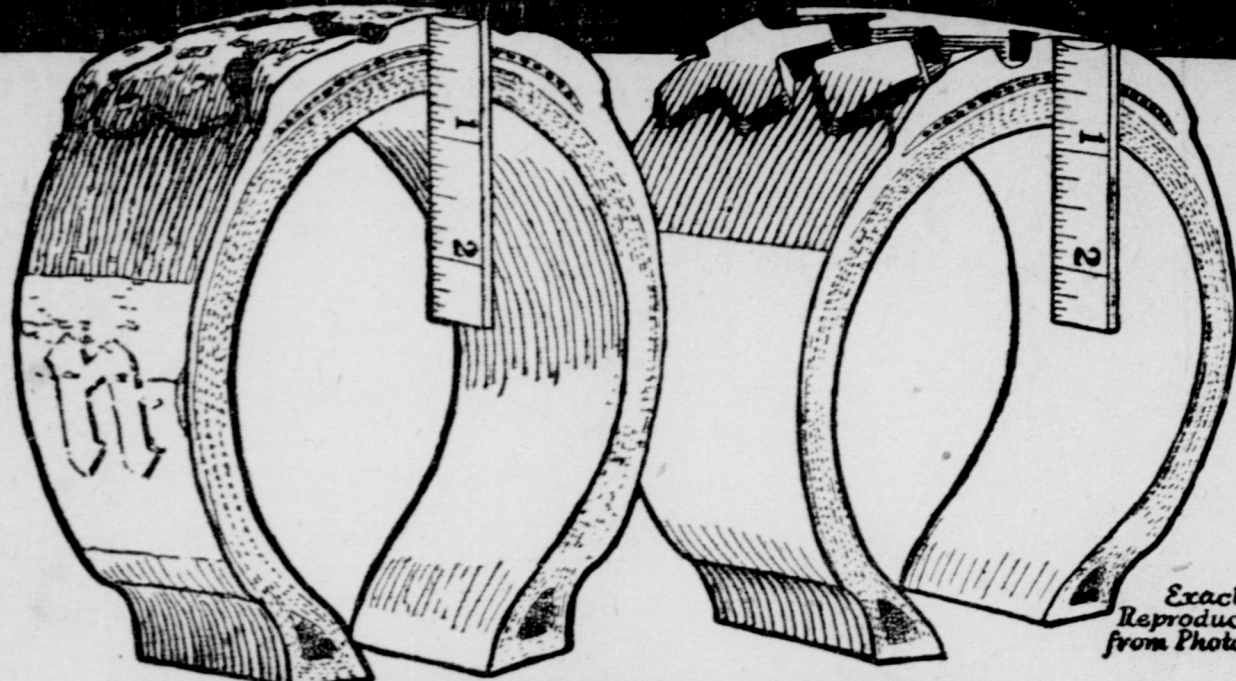

O. C. Henry, Clerk.

Prof. J. M. Calvin was recently honored in the receipt of an appointment from State Superintendent Colvin to conduct a large summer school at Tompkinsville this summer. On account of sickness in his family, however, Prof. Calvin was forced to refuse the appointment.

Firestone CORD TIRES

The section at the right was cut from a new Cord of the same size. Careful measurements show that only 1/3 of the tread of the tire on the Yellow Cab has been worn away after this long, gruelling test. The carcass is intact after more than 11,000,000 revolutions.

and heavy in the center where the wear comes, tapered at the edges to make steering easy and to protect the carcass against destructive hinging action of high tread edges. The carcass is air bag expanded to insure uniform tension and paralleling of every individual cord. It is double "gum dipped" to make sure that each cord is thoroughly insulated with rubber.

This is the reason why Firestone Cords unfailingly deliver extraordinary mileage. It explains the unanimous demand of thoughtful tire buyers for these values. The local Firestone dealer will continue to provide the personal service that makes Firestone tire comfort and economy complete.

SYLVAN SHADE HIGH SCHOOL PLAY TO BE GIVEN AGAIN

The people of the Sylvan Shade community requested that the High School play be given again next Friday evening. We gladly consented and the play will be "put on" the second time Friday, May 26 at 8:30 p. m. in the High School auditorium. We trust that we will have a full house.

If you have seen it staged one time, you know what we have and I feel sure that you cannot afford to stay away if you have not seen it, especially when you learn that the admission is "cut." Tell your friend about it and come again yourself. The play will be carried out in every detail as it was before, not even an interlude omitted.

E. R. Ellison has on one of his popular "Rainbow Sales". He is offering some good bargains and it will be worth your while to visit his store and see for yourself what he is offering.

If it's a picnic or fishing trip come here for the necessary articles. We can fit you out complete with lunches and fishing tackle.—Reid Bros.

Russia, Siberia, Poland Chautauqua Lecture Subject

Lewis A. Convis at the coming Redpath Chautauqua will present a significant, informative address, "Under the Paws of the Russian Bear," telling vividly of Russia, Poland, and Siberia in relation to the problems of America.

In 1918 Mr. Convis was assigned as a civilian worker to the Polish Legion of Siberia. He remained with the Legion through varying fortunes and vicissitudes until its final destruction, when only 870 men survived out of 16,000.

Mr. Convis was peculiarly fitted to serve among Slavic peoples. For more than a decade he had been a close student of Poland and Russia and had had intimate contact with Polish and Russian peasants and upper classes both in America and Europe.

His years of study have made him thoroughly at home in the field of Russian and Polish literature, art and music; and his interpretations of the soul of the Slavic races are vital, informing and challenging.

Mr. Convis was in Warsaw during the siege of that city by the Bolsheviks and witnessed the magnificent defense which the Polish people made of their capital city.

C. A. DOUGLAS.

The funeral of C. A. Douglas, a resident of this city some twenty years ago, and who died enroute to Hickman, was held at the home of his niece, Miss Homer Green, Monday morning at ten o'clock, the Rev. E. A. Tucker conducting the services.

The deceased was born March 18, 1855 in Campbellsburg, Ky., from which city his parents removed to Hickman while he was a young boy. While he lived here he was employed at a wharf boat and in the grocery store of Drewery & Bondurant. He also conducted the Commercial Hotel here a few years. He left Hickman about twenty years ago for Mississippi and Arkansas where he had some business interests. About twelve years ago he came home for a short visit and then left for the west, locating at Portland, Oregon.

About two months ago he left Portland, visiting his brother, W. B. Douglas, at Los Angeles, and three weeks ago left with a friend, R. F. Lopez, in an automobile enroute to Hickman. At Big Springs, Texas, he had an attack of acute indigestion and died May 18. The remains were shipped here and the funeral held Monday, with interment at Poplar Grove Cemetery.

He leaves one brother, W. B. of Los Angeles, three nieces, Misses Savannah Eaker, Marie and Homer Green, and two nephews, R. W. Eaker and Ira Green. Many of his old friends here will remember him.

"Furnishing the Home Beautiful," Topic of Chautauqua Lecture

One of the most unusual lecture features on the coming Redpath Chautauqua program will be the address, "Furnishing the Home Beautiful," by Edwin W. Unangst, well-known authority on the effective and inexpensive decorating of home interiors. Mr. Unangst is the director of the New York School of Practical Interior

EDWIN W. UNANGST

Decoration and is also associated with the Art Institute of Chicago in its "Better Homes" movement.

As a background for his lecture, he sets his stage as a living room completely furnished with lamps, tables, chairs, and accessories secured from local furniture dealers. He explains the possibilities of the inexpensive attainment of color harmony, correct light, and furniture grouping. At the conclusion of his lecture, Mr. Unangst conducts a question-box and discusses any individual furnishing problems presented.

"NORMALCY" GETS SERIOUS SETBACK IN PENNSYLVANIA

Gifford Pinchot's victory over the famous Old Guard machine of Pennsylvania, when he defeated George E. Alter, the latter's candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, recently, startled, if it did not stun official Washington. Members of the reactionary wing of the Republican party including many of the administration followers, could hardly believe the news, and wondered what the ghosts of Simon and Donald Cameron, Matthew and Boise Penrose would think of the election returns.

Democrats uttered another warwhoop even louder than that which followed the defeat of Senator Harry S. New in Indiana. Progressive Republicans expressed satisfaction and predicted that the election would have a favorable result in that it would show the Republican party the path it must follow in the future, which, they added, should be "neither reactionary nor radical, but sanely progressive."

Everywhere in Washington the Pennsylvania result has been the chief topic of conversation and discussion. Early reports received indicated that Alter had a comfortable lead over Pinchot, and the Old Guard followers remained optimistic, but not entirely comfortable.

Then came the flash that Governor Sprout and other supporters of Alter conceded the election of Pinchot, and the Republican regulars began framing their "explanations. The Democrats on the other hand, started beating their party toms on the theory that, coupled with the Beveridge victory in Indiana, it is an unmistakable revolt which for the last year has been in complete control of the Federal Government.

That the successive Progressive triumphs in Indiana and Pennsylvania show a trend away from the controlling group in the Republican party nationally that may lead to an uprising as serious as that of 1912, which resulted in the election of Woodrow Wilson, appears to be the general opinion throughout the National Capital, and such possibilities are even admitted privately by some of the Administration group.

Gov. Sprout of Pennsylvania, in a published statement which is refreshing in its frankness or ingenuousness, just as you look at it, admits that Pinchot's victory was due in large part to the popular discontent with the Harding administration and conditions generally, which he might have added are due largely to the Harding administration. Gov. Sprout, among other things, said:

"He (Pinchot) got a good start on us and was able to capitalize the enthusiasm of the newly enfranchised women voters and to corral all of the disaffected elements in the state who are out of sorts with the administrations at Washington and Harrisburg and with conditions generally."

Judge E. J. Stahr and wife spent a few days in Memphis last week. While there they attended Scott's Grand Opera.

THE COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

Let's Go to Mayfield, June 1st.

The college has been operating a number of sub experiment stations in various parts of the state, and it has been a custom to hold field days annually at these stations.

A field day will be held June 1st, at Mayfield. At the Mayfield station you will see the results of every combination of soil treatment for a period of five years and the visible results will speak plainer than any talk will do. A large delegation of farmers from Fulton County will drive through leaving Fulton at 8 a. m. Let's all go and see what sort of soil treatment will pay. If you have a car gather a load and meet us at Fulton. It will be abundantly worth while and you will enjoy the outing.

Community Programs of Work.

The County Agent assisted by the farmers of four communities worked out four community programs of work in as many communities last week. The communities were Lodgeton, Crutchfield, Sylvan Shade and Palestine. The community programs of work consist of an analysis of the needs of development in a community, the mapping out of certain work to be done and appointment of local leaders in the various farm activities to help carry out the proposed plan. If a great amount of work is to be done it must be through an organized effort on a community basis. Farmers must act as local leaders in the improvement of the chief farm activities. The programs call for definite goals to be reached this year, it calls for a community interest and pride, and for whole hearted cooperation on the part of community leaders and farmers. If these programs are taken seriously and each one does his bit the results will be surprising to any community.

The leaders for the programs now developed are as follows:

Crutchfield—Poultry, I. R. Jeffries; Corn, Lon McClanahan; Tobacco, W. L. Elliott; Dairying, Chester Turner; Hogs, Will Little; Legumes, Gid Binford.

Lodgeton—Tobacco, A. N. Paschall; Corn, Herman Roberts; Poultry, Gerth Jeffries; Hogs, Ed Williamson; Wheat, Porter Harris; Dairying, Clemons Lawson; Sheep, T. W. Stallings; Legumes, Elbert Bondurant.

Sylvan Shade—Corn, T. H. McMurry; Hogs, Jesse McNeill; Poultry, Mrs. Jonah Davis; Legumes, Jim Maddox; Wheat, Isaac Shuff; Dairying, L. D. Maddox; Sheep, T. A. Prather; Beef Cattle, R. C. Prather.

Palestine—Tobacco, Hays Hewitt; Corn, Leslie Nugent; Hogs, John Thompson; Wheat, Charles Wright; Poultry, Fred Hudson; Orchards, Ed Paschal; Legumes, Enoch Browder.

ORCHARD SOILS NEED CARE

Spraying and Pruning Play All-Important Part, but Space Between Trees Is Neglected.

The continued high price of perfect apples is doing more to awaken widespread interest in orchard methods than anything else. Spraying and pruning play their all-important parts, but no orchard can be expected to give its maximum results without proper treatment of the soil and the spaces between the trees.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Harriet Field, twenty-eight years old and beautiful, is the social secretary of the flirtatious Mrs. Isabelle Carter, at "Crownlands," Richard Carter's home and governor of it. Richard is old Nina Carter. Ward, twenty-four years old and unimpressive, fancies himself in love with his mother's attractive secretary, Mrs. Carter's latest "affair" with young Anthony Pope, and the youth is taking it very seriously.

CHAPTER II.—Presiding over the tea-party this summer afternoon, Harriet is profoundly disturbed by the arrival of a visitor, Royal Blondin. Next day, at a tea party in the city, Blondin makes himself agreeable to Nina, and leaves a deep impression on the unsophisticated girl.

CHAPTER III.—Harriet's agitation over the appearance of Blondin at "Crownlands" is explained by the fact that he had been a disturbing element in her life ten years before, and she fears him. The man is an avowed adventurer, living on the gullibility of the idle rich. He frankly announces to Harriet his intention of marrying Nina, who, as the daughter of the wealthy Richard Carter, is a highly desirable "catch," and urges her to aid him. She is in a sense in his power, and after pleading with him to abandon his scheme agrees to follow a policy of neutrality.

CHAPTER IV.—Harriet visits her married sister, Linda Davenport, with whom she had had her home during her unfortunate acquaintance with Blondin, and tells her of his reappearance. The two women, realizing the unscrupulous nature of the man, view the future with apprehension.

CHAPTER V.—Knowing the tender feeling she has inspired in Ward Carter, Harriet is tempted to marry him, but the position and wealth he can give her, though realizing she does not love him, Blondin has ingratiated himself with Madame Carter, Richard's mother, and she is wholeheartedly in favor of his marriage with Nina. Ward urges Harriet to marry him at once. She procrastitates.

CHAPTER VI.—Angered at his wife's too open flirtation with young Anthony Pope, Richard Carter markedly shows his resentment. Isabelle, artfully returning her youthful lover's attachment, closes with him on his yacht, and pursuit is useless. The news of the sensational affair, exaggerated, of course, by gossip, is kept as much as possible from being public property.

CHAPTER VII.—Ward Carter again urges Harriet to marry him, but she merely for the sake of self-advancement, and refuses. The fact of Mrs. Carter's elopement becomes public. Harriet's capable managing hand is more than ever needed at the household, and despite the complications she foresees as inevitable she decides to remain.

CHAPTER VIII.—Blondin puts pressure on Harriet to forward his marriage with Nina, but she makes up her mind to defy him. Richard Carter questions her concerning her knowledge of Blondin's intentions, and she counsels active opposition to the match. The family, with Harriet, move to a summer establishment on Long Island.

CHAPTER IX.—In the new home Harriet, with Madame Carter and Nina, settles down for a vacation. In a frank talk with Nina Harriet endeavors to show her Blondin's unworthiness, but it has little effect on the infatuated girl. On Richard Carter's insistence, Harriet is installed as mistress of the household, but finding her position untenable, declares her intention of leaving. Richard makes an offer of marriage, as a way out of the situation, but Harriet, considering such a thing impossible while Mrs. Carter (though divorced) is still alive, refuses, and leaves the house. To her old-fashioned ideas, the fact that Richard Carter has been granted a divorce from his erring wife does not free him from his marital ties, and marriage with him is impossible.

CHAPTER X.—At her sister's home Harriet helps to bring small news safely through an attack of diphtheria. Linda cordially approves Harriet's stand on the question of marriage with a divorced man. David Davenport, Harriet's brother-in-law, warmly praises his suit, and Harriet has about made up her mind to accept him when Richard Carter appears with the announcement that Isabelle is dead and no obstacle to his marriage with Harriet remains. The yields, and the marriage is quietly solemnized. Harriet offers to tell Richard the circumstances of her entanglement with Blondin, but he refuses to listen.

CHAPTER XI.—The news of their mother's death, shocking to Ward and Nina, is softened by Harriet's comforting. The three take a trip to Bermuda, and on their return Richard Carter realizes that he is deeply in love with Harriet, though their marriage has simply been one of convenience.

There was a silence. Harriet, beginning to be ashamed of herself, did not look at her companion.

"A girl of your age has a great deal of confidence when she marries into a family like mine," the old lady said, presently, in a tone that trembled a little. "My son is a rich man—he is a prominent man. He has used his own judgment, of course. But I confess that in your place I should not carry myself with quite so much an air of triumph! It seems to me—"

Harriet determinedly regained her calm, and taking the chair next to the enraged old lady, quietly interrupted the flow of her angry words.

"I hope I have shown no air of triumph, Madame Carter," Harriet said. "You yourself—and most wisely—pointed out to us a few months ago that the arrangement here was unconventional—"

"Every one was talking, if you mind that!" the old lady snapped. But she was slightly mollified, none-the-less. "But upon my word, you'd think marrying into the family was something to be done every day!" she was beginning again, when Harriet interrupted again.

"No—no," she said, soothingly, conceding the last words an amused smile that itself rather helped to placate her companion. "It is, of course, the most serious step of my life! But the secrecy—as of course you will appreciate—was because there has been so much terrible notoriety this year! Why, Mr. Carter tells me that never in the history of all the Carters—"

This fortunate lead was enough. Madame Carter launched forth superbly upon a description of the usual Carter weddings, the ceremony, the state. In perhaps twenty minutes she was blandly patronizing Harriet, giving her encouraging little taps with her eyeglasses, warning her of mistakes that Isabelle had made with Richard. Harriet knew that before three days were over her terrible mother-in-law would be telling the world just how wise, under the trying circumstances, the whole thing was, and just how clearly she had foreseen it. She was still listening respectfully, if a trifle confusedly, when Ward bounded from the house, and gave her an effusive embrace.

"Hello, Mamma!" Ward said. Harriet laughed, as she pushed away the filial arm. Hardly knowing what she said or did she made her way to the house, and up to her own room.

But here, in Nina's room, were Nina and Mrs. Tabor, and from their eyes, as she came in, she knew that they knew. Nina got up, and came forward with a sort of sulky graciousness.

"I hope you'll be very happy, Miss Harriet—I suppose I oughtn't to call you Miss Harriet any more," Nina said, with an effort to smile that Harriet thought quite ghastly. She gave Harriet one of her big hands, and hesitated over a kiss. But they did not kiss each other.

At luncheon everything was exactly as usual; Richard had gone to the city, not to return for a night or two, and several social engagements distracted the young people from the contemplation of their father's affairs.

Harriet had not dared to hope that they would accept the situation so quietly, or that the world would. There were callers on the terrace every afternoon, there were pleasant congratulations and good wishes, there were a few paragraphs in the social weeklies. Richard had for years been too busy for mere entertaining, and the dinner parties and luncheons to the new Mrs. Carter, it was generally felt, must wait until next season.

To glance at the gold ring on her finger made Harriet feel as if a happiness almost shameful was bared to view. Her new position, modestly as she filled it, was yet a high position. She saw Richard's growing affection and trust, if he did not. She could afford to wait.

"But when are you and Dick Carter going to dine with us?" Mary Putnam said, one afternoon, at tea. Madame Carter, whose Victorian ideal of romance was not at all dissatisfied with the idea of the employer marrying his daughter's beautiful governess, smiled significantly.

"They're very odd lovers, my dear," she said to Mary with an eloquent glance. Mary laughed, and looked at Harriet, whose face was suddenly crimson, though she tried to laugh, too. The visitor, with instant kindness, covered the little break.

"Whenever they're ready, they're going to dine with me!" she said, patting Harriet's hand with real affection and understanding. But Mary was free to reflect. She had the eyes of a contented woman, freed from her own problem for those of others. "And Harriet is certainly mad about Richard," Mary mused.

But with the rest of the world she had to decide that there was something in the affair that she did not understand.

When everyone else had gone from the terrace, and the late afternoon light was throwing clear shadows across the warm red bricks, Nina and Ida Tabor remained, talking. "And now we positively must go in, Nina!" Ida said. "We've wasted this whole afternoon! I have to get packed if I'm going to the Jays'!"

"But you're not going to the Jays'!" Nina said in soft, sweet, confident reminder.

"But I must, darling!"

"No, you mustn't!"

"But, dearest, I truly have to—"

"But, Ladybird," Nina laughed happily, "I sent them a message this afternoon that you were staying with me! So now," she finished triumphantly, "that's settled! And we'll go to bed early, with books, and talk, and maybe creep down for something to eat about eleven, as we did that other night—"

"Nina," Mrs. Tabor said, in a new voice, interrupting her, "you didn't telephone Mrs. Jay, did you?"

"Indeed I did!"

"Well, then, you were extremely impertinent and officious," said a new voice, that Nina hardly recognized.

Poor Nina! Harriet found her sobbing on her bed, half an hour later, and took it for a sign that the wound would cure, that Nina did not resent her sympathy and comfort. Nina was still heaving with deep sobs, albeit taking steps toward a hot bath and a becoming gown, when Ida went away. Her farewells were made only to the composed interloper, who went with her pleasantly to the hall door, and turned back with some remark for Bottomley that was in the perfect tone of the mistress. Ida's heart was hot within her as she looked her last at Crownlands, in the mellow light of the summer twilight.

CHAPTER XIII.

Royal Blondin presently came to pay his respects to Harriet in her changed position. Nina had told her that he had been forbidden the house, in December; they had seen him only two or three times since their return from Bermuda, and then accidentally. Harriet was thankful to believe the affair between him and Nina well over. The girl was growing up now, there were other men in her world, and for the list of her eighteenth birthday party she had merely mentioned his name among others.

HARRIET AND THE PIPER

Three days before the garden party that was to mark the girl's anniversary Royal drifted in with the assurance that was quite characteristic of him. He rarely accepted an invitation, or waited for one. Perhaps he was clever enough to know that half his acquaintances detested him theoretically, but were glad to have him about. Nina and Harriet came in from an afternoon at the club to find him playing with languid hands at the piano, and he lazily rose to greet them. While Nina was there, his attitude toward both was pleasantly impersonal, but his suggestion, which was more like a command, that she run upstairs and dress early, so that they might have a talk before dinner, sent the girl flying, and he and Harriet could speak more freely.

"Well, Harriet, I congratulate you! How does it feel to be a married woman? I saw your name in an evening paper; of course I was delighted for you."

"Money and position don't really mean much to me," Harriet said, unconsciously.

"Money and Position Don't Really Mean Much to Me," Harriet Said, Unconsciously.

"My first sensation," Blondin went on, "was one of satisfaction. I thought to myself that my own cause, with Nina, was safe now. That you trusted me, and I had every reason to trust you."

Harriet looked away for a brief silence, brought her eyes to his face. She felt suddenly sick.

"Roy, you're not still serious about Nina?"

"I have never been anything else," he said, delicately.

"But—but why?" Harriet asked.

"I like the girl," he reminded her pleasantly. "I hope she is not entirely indifferent to me—"

"Indifferent! She's at the age that marries anybody!" Harriet said, indignantly.

"You give me hope," Royal said with a bow.

"Her father very violently opposes it," Harriet said, after a troubled silence.

"I am well aware of that, my dear. Her father forbade me the house last December. I submitted; the girl submitted. But we made our plans. I fancy we will not have any difficulty now."

"You mean that you are engaged?"

"An understanding. We have corresponded, seen each other now and then through Ida Tabor. It's, she smiled, dreamily, "extremely romantic, of course," he said.

Harriet felt she could have killed him.

"You understand that she won't have one penny, Roy. I know her father. He won't yield. He'll forbid it; he'll not hesitate. If she does it against his will, she will have to wait three years for her money. Three years! Roy, she wouldn't be happy three weeks! Mr. Carter spoke to me about it the only time we've spoken of you. He said that he was glad the affair had ended naturally; that you were not the man to make Nina happy, and that he would rather have her suffer anything, and find out her mistake at once, than have her heart broken, and her money wasted, through several wretched years!"

Blondin had listened to this quietly, his eyes moving from her lips to her own earnest eyes, and wandering over her animated face.

"I count on you to be my advocate, my dear Harriet," he said, after a moment's silence. "Richard Carter believes in you; he has great faith in your judgment. If you represent to him that you believe this to be a wise step all round, we shall have no further trouble."

"I can't honestly tell him so, Roy."

the girl interrupted. "Can't you?" Blondin said. He looked across the open hallway to Nina, descending in fresh ruffles and ribbons, and raised his voice. "Here she is—looking like the very rose of girls! Come on now, Nina, you aren't going to belong to anybody else but me for a while!" he said. But as he turned to leave Harriet, he added again: "Can't you? Think it over."

The girl thought it over with a maddening and feverish persistence that presently caused her a sensation of actual sickness. Vague speculations churned and seethed in the weary brain that could find no beginning and no end to them. To have made a clean breast of the whole matter months ago would have meant a delicious sense of freedom from responsibility now, but then under those circumstances would she, Harriet, have been here now? Certainly, even in the present purely technical sense, she would not have been the second Mrs. Richard Carter, nor would she have held her present position of trust and responsibility.

While Nina and her lover murmured on the terrace Harriet brooded on these things, and after dinner that evening she gave Richard so sharp a warning that he sent at once for Nina, and with a clouded brow and angry eyes briefly requested Harriet to be present while he spoke to her.

Nina came at once, with an innocent expression on her rather heavy young face. She seated herself near Harriet, and her father went to the point at once.

"Nina," he said, seriously, "you saw Royal Blondin this afternoon, didn't you?" And as Nina answered only with an ugly glance at Harriet, the betrayer, he added, "Didn't I ask you not to see him any more, several months ago?"

"Yes, you did," Nina said, in a low tone, and with a heaving breast.

"I hope, and we all hope, that you will marry some day," Richard said. "But you are too young now to make a wise choice. And until you are a little older, you will have to take my word for it that such an affair would only lead you to misery and regret."

Nina mumbled something bravely.

"I didn't hear you," her father said.

"I said, I didn't see what you could do about it," the girl repeated, desperately.

For a few moments of silence Richard merely looked gravely at his daughter. Then he clasped his fine hands on the desk before him, and cleared his throat.

"I cannot do as much as I should like, Nina," he conceded, "but I shall do what I can. But first let me ask you: have you promised to marry Mr. Blondin?"

Silence. Nina looked at the floor. Richard repeated his question.

"Yes, I have—and you can't kill me for it!" Nina said, and burst into tears.

"Well," the father resumed, when Harriet had supplied a consolatory murmur and a handkerchief, "I'm sorry, of course. Mrs. Tabor carried letters between you, did she? You met him occasionally?"

"Two or three times," Nina said, sniffing and drying her eyes busily.

"You know my reasons for disliking him, Nina," her father said. "He is a man more than twice your age; he has a certain sort of unsavory reputation in his affairs with women. He has no income, no profession, no home; all those things tell against him. You're only a child—"

"I shall be of age Tuesday!" Nina burst forth, resentfully.

"You will be of age Tuesday. True. But you will be my ward, as far as your Uncle Edward's legacy is concerned, for another three years. Now, Nina, if you persist in this folly, against my most earnest advice, I can only forbid the man the house, and lock you in your room in the good old-fashioned way. That I shall do. I shall then give out to the world—that has already had a rare treat at the expense of the Carter family—the news of my utter disapproval of the match. If you manage the marriage in spite of me, I shall forbid you and Blondin my house, and as a matter of course use my right to withhold the payment of your legacy for three years, and stop your present allowance, and your credit with the shops. That's all I can do! And I do it, Nina," said Richard in a softer tone, "I do it to hasten the inevitable, my dear! I do it to bring you back to your father sooner instead of later; to give you only one year of disillusionment and suffering, instead of seven or eight!"

It must be a brave girl, thought Harriet, who could persist in any course, after that. But Nina had the impregnable armor of ignorance and pride, and she only sniffed pathetically again, and shrugged her shoulders.

"You do everything in the world to make my marriage a failure!" she said with the irrepressible tears. "And I suppose you'll be delighted if it is! And I don't see—if a woman can marry a rich man, why a man shouldn't sometimes be glad if a girl has money! I'm proud to help him out, if he'll let me. He says he won't—why, we had planned going—well, just everywhere, Honolulu and southern California and just everywhere, only now he won't go! He says he is going to stay right here, and take a position with an art magazine that he just hates, and work it all off—before we go, if it takes years—"

"Work what all off?" Harriet asked, simply and quietly.

"This money that a friend of his really lost, but he has taken it upon himself," Nina answered, a little mollified. "It was eleven thousand dollars, and he has paid off about four, and anyway, I hate so much talk about money!" she finished, angrily.

"My dear," Harriet said, as Richard, with a troubled face, remained silent, "It isn't the money that we are worrying about. Why, ask your father, Nina! Ask him if he wouldn't write Royal Blondin a check for any sum to-day, any sum, if you and he would promise solemnly to wait three years more. You will only be twenty-one then, Nina, still such a child!"

Harriet paused, glancing at Richard for encouragement; he nodded eagerly, and she went on:

"Marriage is a tremendous thing, Nina, and the only thing that makes it right—"

"If you're going to say love," Nina broke in, scornfully, "you didn't marry Father for love!"

"I was going to say mutual understanding and respect," Harriet said, quietly, but the splendid color flooded her face as she spoke, "and you do not understand life, Nina, or men, or marriage. Royal Blondin is a charming man, and a gifted man, but he is an adventurer, dear; he is a man who has lived in all sorts of places, known all sorts of persons, accepted all sorts of queer codes. There are coarse elements in him, Nina, things that would utterly sicken and frighten you! Your father is right; you would be back with us in a few months or years, perhaps with a child, perhaps shattered in body as well as soul—not free to take up your life again with Ward and Amy, but scarred and embittered and changed!"

"My God, how that woman loves the child!" Richard said to himself, watching her. To him she seemed inspired. Her eyes were blurred with tears, her voice shaking, and she had leaned over to clasp Nina's hands, and so hold the girl's unwilling attention.

"Nina, can't you trust your father that far?" Harriet finished. "Can't you realize that a man like Royal, embarrassed for money—no matter if he truly admires you, and truly means to make you happy—can't think of you without thinking also of what your generous checks are going to mean to him? Write him a check for eleven thousand, Nina, as a consolation for delaying the marriage a year. Try it!"

Nina rose to her feet. Her trembling mouth was desperately scornful, and her eyes brimming, although she fought tears.

"I don't know why my own family is the first to think that nobody could possibly love me for myself!" she said, in a breaking voice. "First Harriet ruins my friendship with Ladybird—and then—then—!"

"Listen, Nina," her father said. He and Harriet had come around to stand beside her, and he had encircled the shaking and protesting shoulders with his arm. "I have just telephoned Fox to make reservations for me on the next Brazilian steamer. I shall have to be a month or six weeks in Rio de Janeiro every year now. Now, I've just been wondering why you and Harriet don't come with me this first trip? We stop at the Barbadoes and Bahia; it's a magnificent steamer—swimming tanks and gymnasium; you'll love it, and you'll love a touch of the South American countries, too, a chance to try your Spanish. Why not put off this marriage idea for a year, come along with me; you'll make steamer acquaintances, you'll broaden out a little bit—"

"I won't go anywhere!" sobbed

Nina, wildly, turning for flight, "because I'm going to kill myself!"

Harriet only waited long enough after her dramatic exit to give Richard a reassuring nod. Then she hurried after Nina.

The girl was sobbing on her bed, and for awhile she answered Harriet's soothing touch of voice and hand only with angry jerks. Then they fell to talking, and Nina confided for the first time fully in the older woman. Royal's letters, his exquisite cards, sent with flowers, the poems he had written her; here they all were. Harriet sympathized, sighed, and consoled her affectionately. Presently she was able to suggest a new thought to Nina, one that could not be so palatable to the girl's hurt spirit.

WEAK, NERVOUS, ALL RUN-DOWN

Missouri Lady Suffered Until She Tried Cardui.—Says "Result Was Surprising."—Got Along Fine, Became Normal and Healthy.

Springfield Mo.—"My back was so weak I could hardly stand up, and I would have bearing-down pains and was not well at any time," says Mrs. D. V. Williams, wife of a well-known farmer on Route 6, this place. "I kept getting headaches and having to go to bed," continues Mrs. Williams describing the troubles from which she obtained relief through the use of Cardui. "My husband, having heard of Cardui, proposed getting it for me. I saw after taking some Cardui . . . that I was improving. The result was surprising. I felt like a different person."

"Later I suffered from weakness and weak back, and felt all run-down. I did not rest well at night, I was so nervous and cross. My husband said he would get me some Cardui, which he did. It strengthened me . . . My doctor said I got along fine. I was in good healthy condition. I cannot say too much for it."

Thousands of women have suffered as Mrs. Williams describes, until they found relief from the use of Cardui. Since it has helped so many, you should not hesitate to try Cardui if troubled with womanly ailments. For sale everywhere. R.39

T. P. FORTUNE DIED YESTERDAY.

T. P. Fortune, a druggist and one of the most influential citizens of Memphis died at his home in that city yesterday afternoon, his death being due to the infirmities incident to his age which at the time of his death was about 73 years. The deceased was one of Hickman's pioneer citizens, well known to many of the Hickman people. He was in the drug business here until about forty years ago when he removed to the location in Memphis, where he made a distinct success in his line of work. For the past two years he has been inactive on account of his age, much of the time being spent as an invalid. Many are his friends in this city who will be shocked to hear of his demise, and who extend tenderest condolences to his relatives in this city. He was a brother to Mrs. J. E. Fuqua of his place, who has been in Memphis attending him for several weeks. Miss Marguerite Fuqua, his niece, left last night for Memphis to attend the funeral which will be conducted there.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

Christmas time would lack a most important part of the enjoyment without some of the good candies, sweetmeats and cakes.

Nut and Date Chocolate Sweetmeat.—Heat one-fourth of a cupful of honey, or maple sirup to the boiling point, add half a pound of sweet coating chocolate and let stand over hot water until the chocolate is soft throughout; add one package of dates, cut in even-sized pieces, half a cupful of blanched almonds cut in shreds and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Mix with a wooden spoon to blend well. Have ready a brick ice cream mold or small bread pan, lined with parchment paper. Press the mixture into the mold and press with a weight. Let stand six hours or longer to ripen. Remove from the paper, cut in slices to serve.

Christmas Fruit Cup.—For five glasses, take one orange, three bananas, half a package of dates, one cupful of white grapes, measured after seeding and skinning; 12 pistachio nuts, the juice of half a lemon, fruit sirup, and three-fourths of a cupful of cream. Remove all the peel and white membrane from the orange, separate into sections and cut in halves crosswise. Remove the peel of the banana, scrape the pulp and cut into thin slices. Squeeze over the banana the juice of a lemon. Pour boiling water over the dates, stir and drain, let heat in a hot oven to dry; then cut in sections, mix all the fruit together and dispose in glasses, pouring the fruit sirup over the fruit. Blanch and chop the nuts and sprinkle on top after the whipped cream has been placed—a spoonful on each glass. For the fruit sirup use the liquid from canned fruit, or fruit jelly melted in water. Slices of peaches or apricots may replace the orange and the juice of the orange may then be used.

Baked Potato With Sausage.—Select potatoes of uniform size; with an apple corer make a hole through the center and fill with a sausage. Lay in a pan and place a slice of bacon on each. Bake until tender.

THE PROPOSED FREIGHT RATE.

Farmers cannot hope for a successful handling of their interests in national affairs without a watchman on the job. Because "eternal vigilance is the price of success." Like the old dandy who decided that instead of paying for a Thanksgiving turkey to be sent him, he could get better results by being sent after the turkey. If we want consideration, we must be represented before the proper authorities that our claim may be presented for their consideration.

A new schedule of freight rates on livestock for all the territory south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi rivers has recently been issued by the railroads, effective June 1, 1922. The new rates average 57 per cent higher rates than present rates. These rates will be in operation on all shipments of livestock from all points in Kentucky, regardless of whether the shipment is wholly within the state or to points outside the state. Every raiser of livestock in Kentucky will, therefore, be affected by these rates.

In order to bring the effect of this increase down to actual dollars, E. L. Leuman, manager of the Traffic Department of the Bourbon Stock Yards at Louisville, has made an analysis of the increase by comparing some actual shipments made to these yards with the rates per car in 1921 and the proposed rate to go in effect June 1st. I present only a partial list:

From	1921	New rate
Horse Cave	$39.50	$ 90.00
Bowling Green	57.50	91.27
Hopkinsville	49.00	113.95
Guthrie	55.00	107.50

The increase of freight charges on livestock to the Louisville stock yards will mean an increase of over $800,000 annually, which will be paid by the farmers who ship to Louisville. There is no way of estimating what the total figures will be to Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago and other points. The Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation cooperating with the Southeastern

Without organization these rates would probably go into effect, but with the Farm Bureau in active operation the interests of all the farmers will be looked after and the railroads will be given the scrap of their lives.

BORDEAUX MIXTURE FORMULA

Safest and Most Satisfactory Material for Diseases and Destroying Harmful Pests.

The formula for a bordeaux mixture found safest and most satisfactory in apple orchards is three pounds of copper sulphate, four pounds of lime and 50 gallons of water. This formula is usually written 3-4-50. Bordeaux mixture will not kill insects unless poison is added. If an insecticide is desired add two pounds of arsenate of lead to each 50 gallons of the solution. Great care should be used both in making and using bordeaux. In damp weather it is liable to cause burning of the leaves and russetting of the fruit.
